A Technology Preview is an early release of a work in progress. Our intent is for end users in the NC State community to try the tool and provide feedback. This will help us release a more refined product that better addresses user needs and is easier to use. During a technology preview, we may still be creating support materials and updating the tool as we approach the final release.

A Pilot is an exploratory trial to determine if a tool or technology has value for the NC State community. A pilot is typically open to a targeted set of users and involves an evaluation of the tool to inform a decision about adoption.
